

Re: Auto-brake question

Posted by: "John B. Wardlaw CPA" jbwardlaw@sbcglobal.net jbwardlaw2002

Wed Jan 14, 2009 2:21 pm (PST)

Hi Paul:

My mechanic who also builds race cars disabled the Autopark and then hooked a parking brake handle and actuator to the brake assembly in the Autopark to manually activate and release it.

The parts can be ordered from Rjays.com. I have pasted the web site link below along with part numbers for the parts needed.

>

> LOKEC-80FU (2)cables

>

> LOKEHB-7000F Ebrake handle

>

> Look at them on these two links.

>

> <http://www.rjays.com/Lokar/Lokar-Hand-Brakes.htm>

>

You should be able to order them from rjays over the Internet. I do not know what else my mechanic may have had to fabricate to get them to work but it only took him a few hours to get it done.

John Wardlaw

---

Re: Auto-brake question

Posted by: "trpwire" TRPWIRE@AOL.COM trpwire

Wed Jan 14, 2009 11:13 pm (PST)

Here is a site to purchase a manual brake assembly in the event you decide to make the conversion. I've been keeping it as an option for the future:

<http://www.mico.com/products/displaysubinfo.php?id=43>

<http://www.rjays.com/Lokar/Lokar-Hand-Brakes.htm>